—A contemporary has some sensible remarks about the foliy and bad taste of poor girls buying and wearing cheap imitations of fashionable wearing apparel and jewelry. The result is limpsy dresses, dresses which hang like dish rags, washed out and tarnished jewelry, shoes speedily out of shape, and a general air of shabbiness from the from the head downward. But it is feared that the contemporary's advice will be regarded just about as much as the voice of one crying in the wilderness.

—The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher some time ago received a letter from a young man who recommended himself very highly as honest, and closed with the request: "Get me an easy situation that honesty may be rewarded." To this Mr. Beecher replied: "Don't be an editor, if you would be easy. Do not try the law. Avoid school-keeping. Keep out of the pulpit Let alone all ships, stores, shops and merchandise. Abhor politics. Keep away from lawyers. Don't practice medicine. Be not a farmer nor a mechanic, neither a soldier nor a sailor. Don't study. Don't think. Don't work. None of them are easy. Among the mightiest pleas that ever have been made by tongue of barrister have been Among the mightiest pleas that ever have been made by tongue of barrister have been pleas in behalf of the Bible and Christianity—as when Daniel Webster stood in the supreme court at Washington, pleading in the famous Girard will case, denouncing any attempt to educate the people without giving them at the same time moral sentiment, as "low, ribaid, and vulgar deism and infidelity;" as when Samuel L. Southard, of New Jersey, the leader of the forum in his day, stood on the platform at Princeton college commencement, advocating the literary excellency of the scriptures; as when Edmund Burke, in the famous trial of Warren Hastings, not only in behalf of the English government, but in behalf of elevated morals, closed his speech in the midst of the most august assemblage ever gathered in Westminster hall, by saying: "I impeach Warren Hastings in the name of the house of commons, whose national character he has dishonored; I impeach him in the name of human nature, which he has disgraced; in the name of both sexes, and of every surant, and of every situation in the world, I impeach Warren Hastings." Yet, notwithstanding all the pleas which that profession has made in behalf of God, and the church, and fewery situation in the world, I impeach Warren Hastings." Yet, notwithstanding all the pleas which that profession has made in behalf of God, and the church, and the gospel, and the rights of man, there has come down through the generations astyle of prejudice against ft. So long ago as in the time of Oilver Cromwell it was decided that lawyers on gibt not enter the parliament house as members, and they were called "sons of Zernish." The learned Dr. Johnson wrote an epitaph of one of them in these words:

"God works wonders now and then, Here lies a lawyer, an honest man!"

"God works wonders now and then, Here lies a lawyer, an honest man!"

Two hundred years ago a treatise was issued with the title: "Doomsday Approaching, with Thunder and Lightning for Law yers." A prominent clergyman of the last century wrote in regard to that profession these words: "There is a society of men amongst us bred up from their youth in the art of proving, according as they are paid, by words multiplied for the purpose, that white is black and black is white. Zenas, the lawyer "This man of my text be longed to a profession which has often had ardent supporters of Christ and the gospel. Among them Blackstone, the great commentator on English law; and Wilberforce, the emancipetor; and Chancellor Frelingbuyen; and the late Benjamin F. Butler, at orney general of New York; and the late charles Chauncey, the leader of the Phila cliphia bar; and Chief-Justice Marshall, and Tenderden, and Campbell, and Simond More, who died for the truth one scaffold, saying to his aghast executioneer: "Pluck up courage, man, and do not distribute the state of the power of the old fastioned religion of Jesus Christ. "Bring Zenas, the lawyer."

There are two or three forms of the signest tribunal of the state, have become a disgrace to the Tombs courting the power of the old fastioned religion of Jesus Christ. "Bring Zenas, the lawyer."

innate sense of right, wants the sustaining power of the old fashioned religion of Jesus Christ. "Bring Zenss, the lawyer."

There are two or three forms of temptation to which the legal profession is especially subjected. The first of all its skepticsm. Controversy is the lifetime business of that occupation. Controversy may be incidental or accidental with us; but then it is perpetual. You get so used to pushing the sharp question "Why?" and making unaided reason superior to the emotions, that the religion of Jesus Christ, which is a simple matter of faith, and above human reason, has but little chance with some. A brilliant orator of the republican party in the last presidential campaign is a foe of Christianity, and wrote a book, on the first page of which he announced this sentiment: "An honest God is the noblest work of man!" Skepticism is the mightnest temptation of the legal profession, and that man who can stand in that profession, resisting all solicitations to indiedity, and can be as brave as George Briggs, of Massaahu setts, who stepped from the gubernatorial chair to the missionary convention, to plead the cause of a dying race; then, on his way home from the convention on a cold day, took off his warm cloak and threw it over the shoulders of a thin-clad missionary, saying, "Take that and wear it, it will do you more good than it will me;" it will do you more good than it will me;" it will do you more good than it will me; it it will do you more good than it will me; it it will do you more good than it will me; it it will do you more good than it will me; it is to the anniversary platform of the Ameri-

to the anniversary platform of the American Sunday school union, its most brilliant orator—deserves congratulation and encomium. Oh! men of the legal profession, let me beg of you to quit asking questions in regard to religion and begin believing. The mighty men of your profession, Story and Kent and Mansfield, became Christians not through their heads but through their heats. "Except ye become as a little ch'll, ye shall nowise enter into the kingdom of God." If you do not become a Christian, oh! man of the legal profession, until you can reason this whole thing out in regard to God, and Christ, and the immortality of the soul, you will never become a Christian as all. Only believe. "Bring Zenas, the lawyer."

Another mighty temptation for the legal profession is to Sabbath-breaking. A trial has been geing on for ten or fifteen days, The evidence is all in. It is Saturday night. The judge's gavel falls on the desk, and he says: "Crier, adjourn the court till ten o'clock Monday morning." On Monday morning the counselor is to sum up the case Thousands of dollars, yea, the reputation and life of his client may depend upon the success of his plea. How will he spend the intervening Sunday? There is not one lawyer out of a hundred that can withstand the temptation to break the Lord's Day under such circumstance. S. And yet, if he does, he burts his own soul. What, my brother, you thither he repaired, and Lizzie Wright having made up her mind to lead a better life, was seized with a temporary attack of reform fever, and gained admission to the Benevo lent Home, of which her widowed mother is an inmate. About ten days ago Wall arrived in Atlanta, and having learned that his former mistress was at the Home, determined, if possible, to have an interview with her. To this end he dispatched a mutual friend to the Home, who prevailed upon Lizzie Wright to meet him at a house of bad repute located at No. 320 Decatur street. This first meeting between the couple took place on last Sun day afternoon. On the following Tuesday at three o'clock they met for the second time at the same place. During this second interview which is described as highly emotional, and at times quite dramatic, Wall stated that on the morrow he would return to Cedartown, and appealed to Lizzie in the most persuasive manner to accompany him. The girl candidly stated that while she loved Mr. Wall, and was fixed in her belief that he was sincerely attached to her, she could not think of going with him unless he would consent to marry her beforehand and send her back to Atlanta every month or so on a brief visit to her receive. Mr. Wall didn't like this At. at

At the hour of half past ten the Rev. Mr. Speairs, a Baprist minister of this city, performed the ceremony and promounced W. W. Wall and Lizzie Wright, man and wife. The attendants were Willie Burton and a well-known young man of this city, and Maud Lyons and another well-known young man of this city, and Maud Lyons and another well-known young man of this city, and Maud Lyons and another well-known young man of this city. There were many other witnesses to the ceremony. The marriage over the wedding party walked up to a certain restaurant, a distance of some nine squares, and discussed a very late bridal supper spread at the exclusive expense of the groom. The reporter's informant directed his attention with marked emphasis to the fact that while the entire party indulged in the sprightliest of conversations and atte with a heartness rarely equalled and never surpassed—not adrop even of the mildest of wine much less the straightest of whisky, was allowed to past their lips. On such joyous occasions it is extremely difficult to give these things the go-by.

Wednesday, the next day, was spent by the wedding pair at 320 D. catur street. During the day Mr. Wall went to the Fulton house and engaged board for two. Wed nesday might the couple made their appear ance and took possession of their room. It is proper to state here that Mr. Hightower, the gentlemanly proprietor, of the Fulton house, thought they were respectable people, and did not dream for an instant that he was the victim of a most wicked imposition. Thurdly morning early Wall reft the house, stating to his fair partner that he would soon return. The minutes grew into half hours, and dre half hours became long, weary hours, but Wall came not back again. He kept on continuing not to return, and Mr. Hightower had found out the true character of his boarder, be governed as was perfectly proper, and suggested to her that he would foll the animal out of the sack. rotunds of the Markham last night, stumbled upon an erect, fine-looking, portly gentlemansilver haired, beaming-faced, buoyant-spirit-d. It was no less a personage than Colonel J. R. Tole, whom everybody knows and everybody remembers as the pleasant and popular advance agent through the south for so many circus companies. The "Col." as he is familiarly called, has been in the business—a few years excepted—since 1856, and has been connected with almost every really good circus which has ever traveled in this country. He is at present the admirable advance of Sells Brothers' circus, which exhibits in this city October 7th. Bits of THE CONSTITUTION'S talk with him last night, are sure to interest the people. Decatur street comes to the front with a matrimonial sensation which celipses very readily anything in that particular line which has come to pass in this city for many moons. The following spicy particulars of the wedding were furnished a Constitution reporter by Willie Barton, a member of the Irail sisterhood who acted as first bridesmaid on the novel occasion. They were cheerfully given, and may be relied on as absolutely correct:

More than two years ago W. W. Wall formed the acquaintance of Lizzie Wright, a dove of somewhat solled plumage in this city. She pleased his fancy and the result was an intimacy of a rather questionable character which continued until sometime last January when Wall concluded to shake the dust of Atlants from his feet and take up his residence in Cedartown, Georgia. So thither he repaired, and Lizzie Wrighthaving made up her mind to lead a better life, was seized with a temporary attack of reform
